

nothing but blood. On a dresser a letter, written in pencil and addressed to Paul's father, was found. It was a rambling and incoherent wild complaint about not having had his supper in time and about mismanagement of the household. Coroner Taylor glanced at it, and seeing that it contained nothing bearing on the murder and suicide, he was relatively unimportant except as showing the state of the man's mind, handed it over to Lawrence Paul, the dead man's father. The latter had little to say. He merely told Coroner Taylor to go ahead with the investigation and to find out all he could.

Boy's Sad, Graphic Story.
Coroner Taylor got to the house at 6 o'clock, and immediately examined the two bodies. There was only one witness to the shooting—Leslie Eubank. Half crying and clad in a little sailor suit and in his stocking feet, the blonde-haired, dark-eyed boy, who had been brought back to the house and questioned by the coroner. His story was clear, the little fellow remembering all the details and narrating them with the finest exactness.

"They were having all night," he said, "and I was too scared to undress. I lay awake all night, and heard them in the next room. Allen (he calls his stepfather by his first name) kept putting his feet on mother and she got up and lay down on the floor. I heard her say she was going to sleep on the floor, and I heard her get up. Allen kept on fussing with her all night, and I just couldn't sleep. By and by, she got back to the house and questioned by the coroner. His story was clear, the little fellow remembering all the details and narrating them with the finest exactness.

"Then Allen came in and caught her by the wrist and shot her in the arm. He shot her where the arm was joined to mother told me to run, and I ran just as hard as I could. I got close to the fence in the alley because I was afraid he would shoot me through the window. The window was open, and as he would have been able to open the shutters, and I was scared he would shoot me, too. I heard mother scream again," he sobbed, "and that was the last time I heard her scream. I ran around to Mr. Leslie's, because they had always told me to come there, and everything happened, and I knew they wouldn't let him kill me there. They were all up when I got there and let me in. Mrs. Lily telephoned to the police. I heard her when she telephoned."

Paul Mentally Unbalanced.
Details of the marital unhappiness of the Pauls were afterwards gleaned from the boy, and the story of the tragedy of only nine months was gradually unfolded. Coroner Taylor and others are of the opinion that Paul was mentally unbalanced. Last Wednesday he attempted to commit suicide by turning on the gas in the bathroom. But he discovered before he could do so, under the influence of the gas and was carried out. On another occasion he told Mrs. Paul that he was going down into the cellar to kill himself. He got his pistol and went down, but soon returned, saying that he couldn't fire the shot.

Time and again he made threats to kill his wife, himself and his stepson. He always exhibited a tremendous dislike for the little fellow, and the latter said that he was always afraid of him. Once he went so far as to point a pistol at Mrs. Paul, but forbore to shoot. On Saturday afternoon the two went to the baseball game, and those who saw them there said they appeared to be perfectly happy. But the tragedy was resumed on their return. The fussing, said the boy, continued through the evening meal and went on all night. Paul seems to have been jealous of Leslie Eubank, the first husband of Mrs. Paul, and he had taken the birth of her first union. Her brothers and sisters and friends frequently advised her to leave her husband, but she would never consent to take the step. One of the brothers said yesterday afternoon that he said that he had advised her to leave her husband, but she would never consent to take the step.

First Husband Killed.
Mrs. Paul was born Miss Lily Morecocke. Nine years ago she married Leslie Eubank, a conductor on the Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac Railroad. One year later he was fatally injured in a wreck and died of shock resulting from the reputation of one of his legs. His wife received about $10,000 damages, and some believe that Paul married her for the money. When the second marriage took place nine months ago it was with the mutual understanding that Paul was to have the money, which, on Mrs. Paul's death, was to revert to her son. Paul was a candy salesman by trade, but as he once told his wife, according to her son, he preferred to be known as a Richmond salesman. He was a Baptist Sunday school teacher, and he had taken the boy's birthday was on May 27, said the boy last night, "and I got a picture postal of our Sunday school. Mother gave me a bicycle, but Allen didn't give me anything. When mother married him she said he was to do as he pleased and they got married. But I don't think she loved him afterwards, for he was always fussing with her. I didn't love him a bit because he was so unkind to her."

The boy now has neither father nor mother. Tragedy had followed his long life, but his tenacious grip on life was more acute and more lasting sorrow that would come of those of longer years. He is very precocious for his age, is able to read and write and converse better than many older people.

Remembers Every Detail.
He went over the story of the shooting several times, never varying. He remembers nearly everything that had occurred since he was a year old. "I had my picture taken," he said with childish delight, "when I was two years old, and I had it taken when I was three, and when I was five, and mother had another taken not long ago." He was wearing yesterday the same clothes he had on when the last photograph was taken in a gallery on Broad Street. After the murder and suicide he was taken in charge by Robert J. Tuck, of 2618 East Franklin Street, whose wife is related by marriage to the little fellow's mother. They will care for him until further arrangements are made for his future upbringing. His grandfather on his mother's side is living, and he may go to his aunt in Spotsylvania county. By the will of his mother he is amply provided for.

Allen Paul, who was the son of Lawrence Paul, a merchant living at 409 South Laurel Street, and grandson of Herman Paul, assistant at the City Home, was twenty-seven years old, and Mrs. Paul was two years his senior. Their happiness began soon after their marriage. He was a sides threatening her, he twice beat her, once at home and the second time in his store on West Main Street.

Lived Always in Fear.
Leslie returned last Sunday from a visit to his aunts in Spotsylvania county, but her husband refused to allow him. Paul to go to the station to meet him. But the little boy was met by Mrs. Binford. He had waited some time for some one to meet him and was being watched by a police officer. As soon as he saw Mrs. Binford he told the officer that he knew her, and she took him home. The second time little Leslie ran out to get some one to help his mother, but was told by the people he went to that he was not to go. He thereafter lived in constant dread of his stepfather. "Sometimes he was nice to me," he said wearily, "but most of the time he hated me. People kept on telling mother yesterday night, that I wish she had, I wish she had never married him, and then I would have her now. Now I haven't got anybody." He got so tired from his long vigil that he could hardly hold his head up. His eyes were drawn beneath his eyelids, and his face was the picture of weariness. He had been awake twenty-four hours, and when at last he was too tired longer to hold his head up, he put him in bed and he soon passed into the sleep of utter exhaustion.

After her mother's death, Mrs. Paul was reared by Mrs. A. B. Binford, of 2505 Stuart Avenue, who looked her. Mrs. Binford was aroused soon after the tragedy, and at once went to the house where the young woman lay dead. She was frantic with grief, and could not be comforted. She remained away from her home several hours by the pier, unable longer to stand her sorrow.

Two Funerals.
Neighbors flocked to the house all day, for the whole community had been aroused by the sound of the shots and the dying woman's screams. The Pauls have lived on Meadow Street only a few months, and were known by but few people there.

There will be two funerals. Mrs. Paul will be buried in Summit, Spotsylvania county, by the grave of her first husband. Coroner Taylor signed the necessary papers for the removal of the body yesterday morning. The services will be conducted in the house where she was killed to-morrow noon. Paul will be buried here. And two undertakers will be employed—L. T. Christian for Mrs. Paul, and W. Fred Richardson for the husband.

TO SUPPRESS TRAFFIC

National Movement Will Be Inaugurated This Week.
Washington, D. C., June 12.—The first concerted step toward suppressing graft in all its forms throughout the country will be taken here this week, when the organization, whose future name is probably to be the "National Anti-Grant Movement," will open offices in this city, from which it will conduct its campaign. Harry W. Walker will be in charge. The movement is the direct result of the anti-graft speech made last week by former Governor Folk of Missouri, at a banquet tendered him by the Missouri Democracy. It is said that considerable funds already have been pledged to put the organization on a substantial basis, and that it will have the moral support of leading theologians, representing all phases of religious thought.

Among those who are said to be prominently identified with the movement are Perry Belmont, Republican; Augustus Thomas, the playwright; Joseph J. Willett, of Alabama, and Norman Hapgood. The date for holding the first national convention, it is expected, will be fixed this week in Paris, where Messrs. Belmont and Spreckles will hold a conference.

BIG DELINQUENT LIST GOING TO POLICE COURT
City Collector Frank W. Cunningham will turn over to the Police Justice on Wednesday the names of nearly 300 persons who have failed to pay their license taxes, which were due in April and May. A fine is attached in every case. Every year there is a big list of delinquents, due to the fact that many people forget to settle or else have a misunderstanding as to the dates.

Final Sermon at V. P. I.
[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Blacksburg, Va., June 12.—Dr. J. R. Howerton, of Washington and Lee University, preached the baccalaureate sermon at the Virginia Polytechnic Institute this morning from Matthew 23:33, the discourse being an eloquent appeal to the young men to choose religion as the first essential in a successful life.

The service before the Y. M. C. A. was preached this evening by Rev. D. H. Halston, of Petersburg, on the charge to the young men based on the second chapter of First Kings and second verse.

Rain, which has been falling steadily for four days, is likely to seriously interfere with the program for the week, if it does not necessitate the abandonment of the military features.

SERMON PREACHED BY BISHOP KILGO

He Delivers Baccalaureate Address to Graduating Class at Washington and Lee.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Lexington, Va., June 12.—Bishop John C. Kilgo, D. D., of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, preached the baccalaureate sermon this morning at Washington and Lee University, his theme being the power to know God through faith, basing his sermon on the life of Abraham. The discourse was a powerful and eloquent presentation, and the reputation of the distinguished educator as a pulpit orator was sustained.

Bishop Kilgo was introduced by President Denny, who referred to his great services in the field of education, as president of Trinity College, of North Carolina, who had wrought mightily in constructive work for Southern education.

The annual boat race will be run to-morrow afternoon, and the celebration of the literary societies at night. The university fraternities last night gave a dance to visiting girls.

eral courts would be permitted to set aside orders of State courts both with and without appeal. These provisions are highly pleasing to progressive Republicans and Democrats.

The most serious trouble looked for in the adoption of the conference report will be in connection with the long and short railroad rates. The requirement that no railroad should charge a higher rate for a long than for a short haul is not favored by the Senate conferees. It would not be surprising, therefore, if the House amendment on this subject prevailed.

Many lawyers hold that the House amendment would be declared unconstitutional in that it delegates legislative authority to the Interstate Commerce Commission. The Senate amendment prescribes the rules by which railroads would not be permitted to discriminate against short hauls, and thus meets the constitutional question according to the views of its framers.

Insurgents Alert.
The insurgents in the Senate fear that if the Senate conferees yield to the House in this matter their fight over the question of the right to have been a waste of time. It is likely they will debate the conference report at length if the House provision is adopted.

In the main, the Senate conferees have agreed to accept the provision in the House bill, which provides for the amending of section 1 of the existing Interstate Commerce law so as greatly to inter the jurisdiction of the commission over routes and "to provide regulations and practices of railroads."

There is still some dispute over a requirement that all railroads must be prepared to make arrangements with other lines in the establishment of through routes, and "to provide reasonable facilities for operating through routes." The Senate conferees assert that there are railroads which might be crippled by a strict application of this provision. The provisions of the Senate and House on the subject of placing telephone, telegraph and cable companies under the jurisdiction of the Interstate Commerce Commission have been referred to the committee on Commerce and Finance, which will report on the La Follette amendment adopted by the Senate.

News of Eastern Shore.
[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Onancock, Va., June 12.—The damage from the recent hail storm in northern Accomac is much greater than was at first estimated. Irish potatoes were injured in one field, and many were lost to potato patch have been plowed up and the land planted in corn. It was confined to a belt about a mile wide, and extended from the Atlantic to the Chesapeake.

Several fishermen from Wachapreague narrowly escaped drowning in the sudden storm of Friday. They were fishing their pounds in the ocean when it broke upon them. In their efforts to reach land two of the boats sank, and the crews of all held to the one left. The crew of the latter, however, by the saving station appeared and towed the boat and men into the inlet.

The regular term of the Circuit Court has been in session all of the week. Among the cases are several vs. the railroad company for alleged defective drawing. One was heard and a verdict for $150 for the plaintiff given. The injury followed and was due to the great flood of June 9, 1909.

The farm belonging to the heirs of Mrs. John P. Barnes, located near Montpelier, containing sixty-seven acres, brought at public auction Saturday $5,289, about $123 per acre. It was bought for farming purposes.

Shipments of Irish potatoes are being made and will increase largely as buyers are arriving daily. The acreage of the largest ever known, but the Northern seed in many fields is badly damaged by blight. Many of the most intelligent and observant farmers think the planting of Maine grown seed for the early crop will have to be stopped.

HAVE YOU THE STRAW ITCH?
If So, Throw Away the Old Straw Mattress With Little Mites on It.
Washington, D. C., June 12.—People who use straw mattresses run the risk of being attacked by the straw itch, a disease said to be new to American physicians. It is a peculiar itching eruptive disease, which has been proved to be due to the attack of a small straw and grain infesting mite. Public attention has been called to the subject by a publication in the last issue of the government public health reports by Joseph Goldberger, passed assistant surgeon in the public health service. Surgeon Goldberger says it has been shown that the presence of mites in the straw or grain is dependent on the occurrence in the straw or grain of certain insect parasites upon which the mite preys. To the farmer this mite is ordinarily beneficial, but by feeding on the insect parasites of wheat the damage to his crops by the latter is minimized.

The occurrence of a disease similar to the one under discussion has several times been recorded in the European medical press in the last fifty or sixty years, its association with a mite noted. In the United States, however, the malady was not recognized until 1901.

MUST SETTLE QUESTION

Crisis in Vexed University Problem Is Near at Hand.
Nashville, Tenn., June 12.—The board of trustees of Vanderbilt University meets here to-morrow, interest centering in the question of control of the institution, embodied largely in the controversy as to whether the board of trustees is a self-perpetuating body. The first official move in the struggle for control of the university was made at the recent meeting of the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, when A. W. Briggs, of Memphis, a member of the board, was elected to succeed Bishop C. B. Galloway, John B. Ransom and Samuel J. Keith, all deceased. Whether the board will decide these matters as legally elected members or proceed to fill on its own account, the existing vacancies, is the question to be decided. Should the latter action be taken the entire matter would be rendered confidential, and the court would be left to decide as to whether the church or the board of trustees shall direct the destinies of the university. What action Chancellor Kirkland, of the university, prefers is not definitely known.

CAPITAL CHANGED

Oklahoma City Now Becomes Seat of Government.
Oklahoma City, Okla., June 12.—Arriving in special train from Tulsa, at daylight to-day, Governor Haskell and secretary opened the Governor's office in a hotel. Rumors throughout the day that he would regard Oklahoma City as the permanent seat of the State government, as the bill that carried in yesterday's referendum contemplated, were confirmed to-night, when Governor Haskell issued a statement declaring that his office force would be removed to Oklahoma City.

The removal of all the offices will probably be made to-morrow, in the face of an injunction granted in Guthrie yesterday by District Judge Huston.

It is expected that Governor Haskell will issue a proclamation on Monday declaring the bill carried and Oklahoma City the permanent seat of government.

To-day's returns from all the State indicate that the majority for Oklahoma City as the capital is about 59,000. Oklahoma City's plurality over Guthrie and Shawnee is probably 65,000.

WILL DIE POOR

St. Louis Millionaire Gives Entire Fortune Away.
St. Louis, Mo., June 12.—To die poor, David Ranken, Jr., has not only given up his fortune, but he has also given up the support of his favorite school, announcement of which was made yesterday, but the $3,000 per annum he has reserved for his own support during the rest of his life will revert to the institution after his death.

The David Ranken, Jr., School of Mechanical Trades, the beneficiary of his founder, is to be enlarged and its curriculum improved.

Like his office, Mr. Ranken's home is unpretentious. It occupies three small houses on the corner of Fifth and Washington Avenues. Few people, even in St. Louis, know him personally, for he avoids publicity and shrinks from the limelight. He is a bachelor, seventy-five years old, and he is of Irish descent. He amassed his fortune in real estate and stock deals.

STARR EXPLAINS

Tells Why Roosevelt Did Not Die in the Jungle.
New York, June 12.—Professor Frederick Starr, who holds the chair of anthropology in the University of Chicago, returned to-day from a trip abroad the world not far ahead of Theodore Roosevelt, who he predicted would never live to see civilization if he did not die in the jungle of Africa. When reminded of his prediction, Professor Starr replied that Roosevelt had chosen a less dangerous path than the one originally announced, thus avoiding the poisoned lads swamps so deadly to the white man.

In Japan Professor Starr dressed and lived as a Japanese, studying the customs and the religion of the people. "I believe," he said, "that there will be a reaction in Japan against the customs of the Occident. These adopted customs found to be unsuited to the country are being cast off already. American trade will never be as serious as the Japanese because the Japanese and the Chinese are so apt to copy our methods and our products."

LEAP FROM BRIDGE

Man and Adopted Daughter Together in Suicide.
Montreal, Que., June 12.—Albert Enough, a builder of St. Lambert, and his adopted daughter, Lena Healy, jumped from the centre of Victoria Bridge and down sixty feet into the swift current of the St. Lawrence. Both were drowned. Enough leapt first, and was followed a moment later by the girl, but whether she jumped in the excitement of the moment, or in following a suicide pact, never will be known.

Only witness was the bridge electrician. He saw the two sitting down, evidently in earnest conversation. Suddenly both got up, and Enough, who was forty-five years old, climbed the five-foot railing and plunged into the river. The girl followed before the electrician could interfere.

Enough had been in ill health for years.

THREE ARE DEAD
Fourth Man in Battle Is Expected to Die.
Greenville, Fla., June 12.—All but one of the men in a pistol and knife battle here yesterday between two Jeffcoat and two Sheffield brothers are dead, and the fourth member of the Jeffcoat faction, Lewis Sheffield, is not expected to live through the night. Flavius Jeffcoat died last night, and the body of his brother, Lewis Sheffield, and knife wounds administered by the Jeffcoats resulted in the death of Lewis Sheffield. Will Jeffcoat was killed outright by Lewis Sheffield.

The fight resulted from a dispute over a woman. Sheffield charged that Will Jeffcoat was stealing.

CROP CONDITIONS ARE SUMMARIZED

In Foreign Countries Very Satisfactory Progress Has Been Made.

Washington, D. C., June 12.—Foreign crop conditions, summarized from reports to the Department of Agriculture, are printed in the Government Crop Reporter just issued, as follows: "Agriculture, the most vital industry with which humanity has to deal, has during the past month made generally satisfactory progress in all the more important producing countries. The wheat crop of British India, next to the United States, Russia and France, the heaviest producers of this cereal, has proved to be with only exception the largest in her history. Corn in Argentina, in late years the leading exporter of this product, has yielded a crop, though not a record one, almost equal to the best recent years. In the Canadian Northwest wheat has been sown on a probably largely increased area. During the present month harvest will be on in the southern latitudes of Western Europe.

Harvesting in many European countries, during the first half of May was characterized to a greater or less degree by slow development. In the western part of the continent, especially in Great Britain and France, persistent low temperatures and excessive moisture, with occasional frosts and flurries of snow and sleet, kept growth in many districts almost stationary. Complaints of cereals losing color, of damaged spring sown crops and of rank growths of weeds were common; in the west and northwest of France, particularly, where all salubrious weather might easily have been expected, excepting for the knowledge that the retarded vegetation would quickly respond to the magical efforts of the daily expected sunshine and warmth. In Central Europe, the Balkan States and Russia, also, the weather during early May was in many parts normal, though to a less degree, cold, but, although there was some slight deterioration in crop conditions in Austria, Hungary and Germany, the advanced, and in localities even luxuriant state of the winter cereals in all countries kept the formerly promising outlook as a whole well maintained.

During the latter half of May, however, fine spring weather prevailed throughout practically all of Europe, and crop reports from all sources expressed satisfaction, and showed the aspect of the fields, where growth had been most delayed, in these countries much of the vegetation was admittedly two or three weeks behindhand, and although favorable weather was completely changed the aspect of the fields, the prevailing opinion is that some of the deterioration is irreparable and that the winter cereals, at least, will not give average yields. In Central and Eastern Europe prospects for the coming season are promising, and the promise is for an exceptionally abundant harvest."

CHORUS GIRL KILLED
Caught Under Car When It Plunged Into Ditch.
Indianapolis, Ind., June 12.—In the wreck of an automobile, which plunged into a ditch when one of its tires burst while running at high speed north of Indianapolis to-day, Lonnie Albert, of Pittsburgh, a chorus girl, was instantly killed.

The car, with five persons, turned over when it struck the bottom of a ditch, and Miss Albert was crushed under it. Her companions were thrown free of the wreck and were only slightly bruised.

The car was driven by Frank Clemens, an automobile salesman and driver of racing cars. The young woman's body will be sent to her home, her father, William Albert, of Pittsburgh.

WILL RENOUNCE TREATY
Japan Is Bringing Diplomatic Affairs to a Head.
Washington, D. C., June 12.—The Japanese government, according to the present program, on Friday will renounce the existing treaty with the United States. The act of the Japanese government is no mark of hostility, but is only part of an effort of that government to revise and bring up to date its whole fabric of treaties with the outside world.

The present treaty was negotiated by Secretary Gresham in the last Cleveland administration, and it was a pioneer treaty in its way. Before that time the status of Japan in its world relations had been those of a semi-barbarous country.

SLAYER CAPTURED
Found in Woods After an All-Night Search.
La Crosse, Wis., June 12.—Matt Reugen, slayer of John Studier, of Amsterdam, former manager of the Pearl Button Works, of this city, was captured by the police in the woods half a mile from the scene of the murder, after an all-night search through swamps through which he escaped.

Reugen confessed to the police that he shot Studier because the foreman shaved his salary check as gutter in the factory, claiming that Reugen was entitled to the full amount because of poor workmanship.

His Arm Broken.
Milwaukee, Wis., June 12.—An X-ray examination of Ad Wolgast's left arm to-day showed that the bone was splintered about three inches above the wrist and a ligament slightly torn during the contest with Jack Imdorf Friday night. Wolgast, who was unable to do any boxing for at least two months. He has returned to his farm in Michigan for a rest.

Farrell Issues Denial.
New York, June 12.—President Frank Farrell, of the New York American League Club, to-night made emphatic denial of the story printed in Detroit and telegraphed East to the effect that Farrell, and by four sons, Messrs. W. G. C. J. A. Williams, of this place, and H. A. Williams, of Norfolk. The funeral will be preached by Dr. J. L. Lawless, of Ashland, at the Franklin Baptist Church at 4:30 o'clock to-morrow afternoon. The burial services will be held immediately afterward at the Poplar Spring Cemetery.
